Certificate of Authorship/Originality

I certify that the work in this thesis has not previously been submitted for a degree nor has it been submitted as part of requirements for a degree except as fully acknowledged within the text.

I also certify that the thesis has been written by me. Any help that I have received in my research work and the preparation of the thesis itself has been acknowledged. In addition, I certify that all information sources and literature used are indicated in the thesis.

Signature of Candidate

Acknowledgements

Successful completion of this thesis would not have been possible without the invaluable advice and assistance of many people; and it is both a duty and a pleasure to express and record my gratitude.

First and foremost, I would like to sincerely thank my supervisor Professor Michael Adams for his constant encouragement, patient guidance and generous support. The direction which he provided in this research effort was truly professional and exemplified the style of a true scholar.

I am also indebted to Lilla Wendoloski for editing my thesis.

Special thanks must be extended to Claudia Wee and Li Dan for their friendship and support during the writing of this thesis.

Finally, my heartfelt love and gratitude go to my mother, Susan Nehme, my father, Jean Nehme and my brother, Henri for their understanding, sacrifices and love. It is to them that I dedicate this work.

Abstract

Enforceable undertaking is one of the many sanctions that are available to the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). It is a promise enforceable in court. The alleged offender, known as the promisor, promises the regulator to do or not to do certain actions. As a consequence, the result achieved in the enforceable undertaking reflects the compromise that is agreed upon by the parties involved. This penalty is widely used in the regulatory community for it allows the regulators to reach plausible solutions to alleged offences without spending the resources of their agencies or the resources of the courts. This thesis looks at the way ASIC uses enforceable undertakings through a study of all the undertakings that were given by the corporate regulator between 1998 and 2004. It points out the goals behind the use of enforceable undertakings and checks if those goals are in conformity with the recommendations of the Australian Law Reform Commission. It also notes if there is fairness, stability and consistency in the treatment of the alleged offenders in the undertakings. Furthermore, it observes the method by which ASIC monitors the undertakings. Finally, it considers whether the courts encourage ASIC to enter into enforceable undertakings.
